

AACL 2016
American Association for Corpus Linguistics 2016 Conference jointly with

14th Annual Technology for Second Language Learning (TSLL) Conference
Iowa State University

CALL FOR PAPERS

The American Association for Corpus Linguistics (AACL) calls for proposals for paper presentations at their next conference, which is being held jointly with the 14th Annual Technology for Second Language Learning (TSLL) Conference, on September 16-18, 2016, at Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa.

Submission of Abstracts

Faculty, graduate students, and independent scholars are invited to submit abstracts for 25-minute papers (20 minute presentation + 5 minutes for questions) on any aspect of corpus linguistics. Abstracts will undergo anonymous review.

Papers are welcome from a range of subfields in three categories:

1. Tools and methods (corpus creation, corpus annotation, tagging and parsing, visualization of large data sets, open source corpora (philosophy and practice), software development);
2. Linguistic analyses of corpora as they relate to language use (register/genre as well as lexical and grammatical variation, language varieties, parallel corpora, historical change, lexicography);
3. Application (the use of corpora in language teaching and learning).

Abstract Details:

- Cover page: Author(s) name(s); Affiliation; Contact information; Paper title; Category (see above)
- Abstract page: Paper title; Abstract (max. 250-300 words)
- Format: MS Word or PDF (the latter is necessary if the abstract contains specialized fonts)

Submit abstracts to aacl2016@iastate.edu by April 1, 2016 (extended deadline). In the subject line of your email, please indicate the category your paper would most likely fit in (see categories above).

Conference Website

<https://apling.engl.iastate.edu/conferences/aacl2016/>

Important Dates:

April 1, 2016	Extended deadline for submission of abstracts
April 30, 2016	Notification of decisions on abstracts
May 1, 2016	Early registration opens
July 1, 2016	Preliminary schedule posted
Aug 10, 2016	Early registration ends
Sept 10, 2016	Regular registration
Sept 16-18, 2016	Conference (Registration on site)

General AAACL Information

Previous conferences of the American Association for (Applied) Corpus Linguistics have been held at different universities in North America starting in 1999: Northern Arizona University (2014, 2006, 2000), San Diego State University (2013), Georgia State University (2011), University of Alberta,

Canada (2009), Brigham Young University (2008), University of Michigan (1999, 2005), Montclair State (2004), IUPUI (2002), and University of Massachusetts-Boston (2001).